WORLD

24–26 February 2017 – The Asia-Pacific Region in collaboration with the Boy Scouts of the Philippines (BSP) hosted the Leadership Workshop in Sta. Rosa, Laguna, Philippines.

The training allowed participants to explore the different leadership models of the World Organization of the Scout Movement (WOSM) composed of four skills set, namely: Visionary Skills, Management Skills, People Skills, and Self-Management Skills.

At the opening program, AP Regional Director Jose Rizal Pangilinan welcomed the 31 participants and staff from 13 countries.

World Scout Committee member and Chairman of Innovating Scouting, Mari Nakano said "the extent we can contribute to society especially in educating young people to become responsible citizens can be summarised in one word – leadership".

Cedrick Train, National Chief Commissioner of BSP shared that "to enhance the Scout Movement, the leadership structure should be strengthened".

Participants shared their expectations and majority of them looked forward to exchanging experiences and leadership activities with other associations, as well as being able to bring new tools for leadership while most wanted to know how to introduce better changes through leadership.

The first track is Youth Programme focusing on existing and imaginative ways of implementing the model in Youth Programme. The second track is Adults in Scouting covering different ways of using the Leadership in Scouting model, applied to the management of adults, and the third track is organisational development, which is examining how the model can become useful for the organizational development of a troop, national or regional level.

Secretary General of the BSP, Roger Villa, articulated that ultimately "leadership is all about relationship built on trust, love, care and hope and we in BSP are very optimistic that each of us can make a difference".
