World Environment Day launched at Scout Nature Park

On 5th June, forty Scout leaders representing 12 National Scout Organizations (NSOs) marked the World Environment Day at the Asia-Pacific Workshop on Environment Education in Scouting held in Sabah, Malaysia.

Succeeding exercises included those which could be played among children for them to feel and admire the beauty and texture of trees. Participants identified the creative use of natural materials which otherwise could be treated as waste. Each NSO representative planted a skyfruit at the Scout park.

At the other side of the camp, 400 young people from Sandakan gathered as a pre-camp of the Sabah centenary Jamboree. Their day began with a session on environment education to understand environmental problems and ways of reducing these problems with proposed actions.

A representative from the Sabah Forestry Department gave a lecture on climate change and the role of young people, which preceded the formal launch of the world environment day by the National Scout Chief Commissioner of Malaysia Dato Shahurum. Using a video presentation, State Chief Scout Commissioner Dato Awang Zaini shared the activities of Sabah Scouts on mangrove reforestation.

A mix of Scouts and young adults, seasoned journalists, professional Scout leaders and volunteers comprised the first APR Correspondents Workshop in Manila, Philippines 22-25 June. The workshop was the first Asia-Pacific event held at the new BP International hotel of the Boy Scouts of the Philippines (BSP) in Manila.

The workshop aimed to establish the communication standards of Scouting in a global context, editorial planning and networking of correspondents in the Asia-Pacific Region.

Honorary correspondents for Scouting is a concept that has been practiced in the Asia-Pacific Region for decades. A new set of correspondents has been reactivated over the past 15 years. Their responsibility includes regular contribution to the region's monthly e-news, printed newsletter and website. A similar concept has now been extended at the world level and all member countries have been requested to nominate correspondents across all six regions.

In his session "Scouting in transition," Maximino J Edralin Jr., veteran PR practitioner in the Philippines and life member of the BSP, picked up a number of practices from the past against Scouting nowadays and the emerging challenges of the new media.

Media practitioners also joined the workshop as resource persons: Tita Valderama and Chelo Banal-Formoso handled the sessions on news writing and feature writing.

Resource speakers at the workshop include the APR Programme Chairman Jose Eduardo Delgado, former outstanding Scout Redempto Parafina, and Caleb Cheah of Singapore.

Key Scout leaders supported the workshop: World Scout Committee member Eric Khoo, APR Scouting Profile Sub Committee Vice-Chairman Berthold Sinaulan, member Oliver Lim; APR Programme Vice-Chairman Rajalingam Ramasamy and member Malcolm Tan Ban Hoe; and Regional Director Abdullah Rasheed. Nixon Canlapan of the BSP was the Workshop Director and Luz Taray of APR office was the facilitator.

During the past year, TTL troop in Karachi focused on vocation skills. Remarkably, 39 Scouts underwent various vocational skills such as bookbinding, tailoring, motorcycle mechanic. Out of 39 Scouts, 16 achieved their proficiency badge in book binding and tailoring. In the advancement scheme, a total of 115 Scouts have passed the second level, the Tanzeem badge, and are now working for the next level.
